Limbic Stress Assessment System

If only your body could tell you what it needs

Your body's systems are designed to maintain high energy, good health, and general balance. But today's physical, dietary and emotional demands often overwhelm these systems leaving your body compromised and depleted of the resources it needs. When this happens, we begin to see the all-too-common symptoms of:

Fatigue

Pain

Weight Gain

Susceptibility to Illness

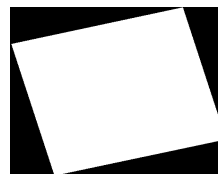

Your quality of life could significantly improve if you were able to determine what best fulfills your body's unique needs—but how?

Enter the Limbic Stress Assessment System. The LSA quickly, comfortably and non-invasively measures and analyzes your body's response to a wide variety of remedies available at our clinic.

The LSA Helps You As An Individual.

Your body uses a system clinically known as stress to maintain a healthy equilibrium called homeostasis. When homeostasis is threatened by things such as a virus, an injury or pollution (stressors), your body allocates resources to fight these stressors and heal itself.
